HARUN FAROCKI

“Transmission”, 2007

Video, color, sound, 43 min.

The video “Transmission” is concerned with gesture and custom. It documents the forms of behaviour and ritualised hand movements that people adopt when coming into contact with statues or memorials. One example is the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, where visitors run their fingers along the engraved names of the fallen.

“Transmission” compiles a vocabulary of gestures in a series of different memorial and everyday customs. The attention is directed away from the objects of veneration themselves to their usage, and to the traditions and techniques of giving and experiencing meaning.

PEP AGUT

“La iguana”, 2007

Video projection, 5 min.

"L'Iguana" (The iguana) is a beautiful allegory of the imprisonment of the space of art within the spaces of its own history, those of the public and the private. It is a small sketch of the unfolding of pieces of a bigger picture in which the artist's gaze would be rebuilt as an internal vision, "self-portraited", articulated on an impossible cartography of the domains of insomnia.
